

IUST hosts Parents Meet 2022

Awantipora, May 18: To create healthy teaching-learning environment for the students by involving their parents, Islamic University of Science and Technology (IUST) Wednesday organised the Parents Meet 2022 hosted by the office of Dean of Students.

Dean Academic Affairs, Prof. Manzoor Ahmad Malik who presided over the meet expressed his deep desire to develop a strong connect with the parents to discuss about the students' academic performance, their personal problems and the corrective steps to overcome the identified problems. Prof. Malik highlighted the significance of parent-academia association along with their roles and responsibilities for overall development of the students. While expressing his happiness over the development of IUST, Prof. Malik urged the parents to be part of future developments of IUST.

Dean Research Prof. A. H Moon, while highlighting the achievements informed that IUST has exceedingly done well in terms of many parameters like research, number of patents, entrepreneurs, performance in competitive exams like GATE, CAT etc. “Through its Centre for Innovation and Entrepreneurship Development (CIED), IUST is encouraging and nurturing budding entrepreneurs to transform their novel ideas into products, processes and services for the commercial exploitation, thereby making society self-reliant”, he said.

While addressing the participants, Dean Outreach Prof Shabir Ahmad Bhat briefed the audience about the vision for university outreach and impressed upon the parents to contribute to these efforts. Parents and teachers need to pay more attention to the health of students in order to get away from the evils of society, he added.

An interactive session was held wherein parents gave their valuable feedback and suggestions for enriching the activities of the university.

Earlier Dean of Students Dr. Anisa Jan while welcoming all the participants gave a brief overview of the achievements made by the university and at the end Ms. Baziga Yousuf presented vote of thanks.
